

10. "Bill's Pillars"
by James Dawson;

150km out of Melbourne there is salt crusting on the side of the highway, huge fields after fields of stunted grain crops, fields empty of cattle and sheep or full of skeletonised cattle and sheep, abandoned farmhouses and plenty of carcasses. Yet the women from these areas were at the Garden show, getting inspiration to create a bit of beauty amongst their hell. They saw humour in our Shakespeare garden for the way we'd used the junk they have lying around, for the daily drama that is theirs; now art."

8000 copies of Landscapes Victoria were distributed from the LIAV stand in the centre of the precinct, giving a boost to the concept of professional landscaping. We expect a constant stream of enquiries from the promotion; make sure you take advantage of them through the Friday job list.

Thanks for the success of the precinct go to LIAV's Executive Officer, Julie Edmonds and the team that supported her: Simon Buchanan of TLC and Rohan Blythe of Spaces & Places who were the project managers, Spaces & Places, Dirtscape Dreaming, Mark Bolltho, Dean and Shane from Greenmeadows Landscaping, Paul from Coolabah Landscapes (and Amy and Honey), Warren from TLC, Lachie Anderson and crew from Lachie Anderson's Landscapes, Peter and Mark from Winstanley Landscapes and Dean Walsh from Woodbridge Landscapes. Thank you also to O'Shea's Timber and Hardware, Din San Nursery, and Bio Gro for supplying product and plants for the area.
